

Inchican Elementary School Field Notes:

- March 16, 2026 (Formative Playtest)
 - Only 5 students available
 - Multiple tablets were brought but had half to little charge left
 - Participants will be affected due to prior groups' interventions or their own evaluations.
 - Participants seem tired or bored already before playing the game.
 - Current setup is not optimal as the five participants have now split into two groups of a pair and a trio.
 - A trio of girls with last names Althea, Rasi, and Monique
 - Althea, quiet type (7 levels completed)
 - Finished first (3:04)
 - Struggled at Level 3, pit hopping section, but was laughing quite loud about it
 - Found Wiz cute
 - "Masmaganda to kesa dun sa una"
 - Pertaining to the previous games they played
 - Touched other participants' tablets
 - Rasi, competitive type (7 levels completed)
 - Finished last (4:42)
 - Was leading at first due to brute force and cheese
 - Got stuck because she skipped the tutorial on how to melt ice cubes.
 - Asked why was I alone or had no group
 - Enjoyed herself when she was skipping/completing levels in an unintended way
 - Monique, smart type (7 levels completed)
 - Finished second (3:45)

- Regularly progressed but was kind of slow or gentle even during the minigames
 - Asked if there would be more levels next time
 - “Ah pwede pala ganun”
- Group generally expressed happiness and enjoyment towards the game especially playing together and guiding one another
- Confusion over how to answer the MEEGA+KIDS survey
- Wasn't informed of the P500 raffle for participating.
- The other two participants weren't willing anymore at the end of the session and left. Only three data points were gathered.
 - Most likely tired or burned out from previous groups.
- March 19, 2026 (Summative Playtest)
 - Only DICT internet available
 - Can't play on personal devices nor rented computers at their ICT lab.
 - Wasn't sufficient to support downloading and installing so I utilized the web version in Unity Play instead.
 - Computers only had ethernet; computers provided cannot be used.
 - Only 18 out of the promised 30 arrived; the rest were to arrive at 1 PM apparently.
 - Borrowed 19 tablets from Jan's group who arrived before me
 - 4 students, Althea, Leonard, James, and Kenneth arrived early and volunteered to help set up internet connections for all tablets.
 - 4 were compensated with juice provisions
 - ICT lab was really hot, given the sunny weather.
 - Some students complained about this
 - A lot of students call me Sir TwT
 - They assumed I was older / in my 30s

- I had them scan a QR code on my phone and most got to connect properly to Unity Play
 - Web version only worked on Google Chrome
- Some attempted to connect via their personal phones and it also worked
 - I lent 2 of my devices to those struggling to scan the QR code
- Pretest Begins (9:31)
 - Yup, due to the nature of why they're on campus in the first place, I had to provide them with my own pencils
 - "Hala di ko na tanda to"
 - "Ang hirap"
 - Most were confused on Section B of the exam and asked about it
 - Some attempted to collaborate but were told off by their classmates
 - Some finished as early as 9:36
 - Some already started playing the game despite explicit instructions to not start yet.
 - Leonard sang the BGM of the menu abit saying it's catchy (nakaka LSS)
- Pretest roughly ends (9:45)
- Playtesting begins around the same time
 - Some had trouble starting the game in Unity Play or perhaps just waited for instructions.
- "Ang cute ni Wiz"
 - Some participants attempted to play with the tablets on the table, either due to disinterest or inexperience in playing on a tablet.
- "Ang dali naman"
- Some quiet participants became louder once the play testing started
- Groups were being formed out of apparently friendships based off of their seating and playtesters

from the formative playtesting “flexed” having played the game before

- “Bakit iba na ito kuya”
- Some students appeared confused on their first encounter of the minigame
 - Some did it on their own
 - Some taught others, especially James
- A lot of participants laughed at their first “death” in the game
 - Some got frustrated and panicked not being able to make the jumps.
- Some students found the mechanics appealing with the book of fire
 - “May apoy oh”
 - “Gamitin mo kasi yung pang heat para matunaw”
- Visual Bug discovered in Level 7 (Unsynced tilemap caused glitched graphics)
 - Some got stuck in Level 7 just trying to melt everything rather than follow the dialogue
 - Most students did skip the dialogue
- Multiple students exhibited different solutions in different levels
 - Someone went out to watch a contest/find out the winner..?
 - They came back.
- First completion, 10:06, Leonard
 - One of the students that started early
 - Joked around a lot, teasing his fellow participants for being slow
 - “Ako na gagawa”
- Web version on mobile devices is prone to either backing/switching tabs, leading to a loss of some progress.
 - Can get back to last completed level

- Was supposedly meant to be played on the desktops but hehe no wifi
- “What’s the Temple that Wiz entered? Saan sya napunta”
 - HE’S ASKING FOR LOREEE
- Some were getting tired and approached me for help or for questions regarding me
 - Or the game or as a developer
 - “Mahirap ba po gumawa ng game?”
 - “Nakagawa na po kayo ng roblox”
- Some students roam around despite not being done yet
- Some collaborated with others to proceed, most often regarding Level 12 and getting themselves stuck
 - There’s helpful dialogue there...
- Playtest Finished at 10:15 - 10:20-ish
 - I only promised I’d keep them for an hour as per Ms. Suzanes request to not keep them for too long as they had graduation practice.
 - MEEGA+KIDS survey skipped for summative playtesting
 - Some showed dismay in having to stop midway
 - Some blatantly won’t stop playing
 - A few were relieved the playtesting is over
 - Someone asked if there was another game to play lol
 - “Uwian na ba po?”
 - “Kelan po yung snacks”
- Post test begins 10:22
 - “Kaya na ito”
 - “Kala ko yung game nalang”
 - They really don’t like doing the exam portions
 - Some rushed the exam after finding out snacks and drinks were given to those who finished.

- Some started leaving at 10:30
- “Masaya po sya laruin”
- “Nakakalito po yung ibang parts nung game”
- “Hanggang saan ka nakaabot?” (talking to his friend)
- The post test officially ends at 10:35 as the last student leaves.
 - Some students help me tidy up the lab as well as the tablets.
 - “Meron pa ba pong playtesting?”
- 19 tablets accounted for; 11 matching their boxes except 8 of them
- No new students arrived at 1:20, I have to go home now
- End of notes
